Workshop A1: Christian Poetry with Don Martin. Martin is "Series editor for the Poiema Poetry Series" from Cascade Books, and Poet-in-Residence at McMaster Divinity College. D.S. Martin's books include: Conspiracy of Light: Poems Inspired by the Legacy of C.S. Lewis (2013), Poiema (2008) and the chapbook, So The Moon Would Not Be Swallowed.

Martin is "Series editor for the Poiema Poetry Series"

Workshop A2: Speak the Truth Without Getting Sued with Denyse O'Leary. Five steps to reduce the risk of a lawsuit for libel or slander. She began to publish her books in 2001 and she continues to do editorial work.

Workshop B1: Exploring the Intersection of Journalism and Fiction with Peter Stockland. He is a veteran journalist of 30 years who is currently senior writer with the Canadian think-tank Cardus, and publisher of Convivium, an online publication that explores the role of faith in common life. Prior to joining Cardus, he was vice-president of English-language magazines for Reader's Digest Magazines Canada Ltd. A former editor-in-chief of the Montreal Gazette, and a former editorial page editor of the Calgary Herald, Peter is also an accomplished writer of fiction published in numerous Canadian magazines.

Workshop B2: Write Right with Timothy Kitz. He is a freelance editor who has edited novels, picture books, academic essays, game manuals, legal transcriptions, medical translations, band biographies, and other forgotten "things and words". Timothy is a published author, poet, and comic maker and can be reached via timothykitz@gmail.com and refreshing words.net.

Workshop C1: Stepping Stones for the Developing Writer with Liz Kranz. Liz is a multi-faceted writer - short stories, news articles and plays. She has published short stories in: "Valley Living", "Praise Writes," "Haleyon", "Our Canada", and "More of Our Canada". She has published short stories in two books: Apple Cider with Cinnamon, and Chicken Soup for the Soul: The Spirit of Canada. Liz has written articles in "Spur Ottawa", and she currently writes two columns for the Pembroke Daily Observer Newspaper. She has also written a number of plays performed in churches.

Workshop C2: Traditional Publishing Versus Other Options with David Kitz. He is an award-winning author, a teacher and an ordained minister, who uses the power of drama to bring stories to life. His writing experience spans several genres. His Passion of Christ novel won the Word Guild award for historical fiction. His children's picture book, Little Froggy Explores the BIG World also won an award. David is a blogger. He has written, edited or contributed to more than ten books. For more information visit www.davidkitz.ca. His recent book is The Soldier Who Killed a King (2017).
